DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

Group I: Embodiment 1 (Figs. 3-8)

Group II: Embodiment 2 (Figs. 9-10)

Group III: Embodiment 3 (Fig. 11)

Group IV: Embodiment 4 (Figs. 12 and 13)

The species are independent or distinct because Group I teaches a method and apparatus for choosing different compression ratio settings based on transmission speed and battery life, wherein the compressed data is first stored on a recording medium before transmission, then secondly compressed and transmitted to the external device. Group II, however, teaches that different compression ratio settings based on transmission speed and battery life are determined, and that the compressed data is stored on the recording medium in proper form for transmission, and therefore is directly transmitted from the recording medium to the external device in the ideally compressed state. Group III discloses that different compression ratios are determined based again on transmission speed and battery life, but that compression ratios are changed based on the transfer time. And finally, Group IV teaches that different compression ratios are determined based again on transmission speed and battery life, but that when battery life is determined to be low, the transfer order of compressed image data from the recording medium is set from the smaller data amount to larger data amount, thereby allowing a larger amount of image data to be transferred with the remaining battery power. As is clearly shown, each of Groups I-IV is a distinct species of the invention of altering compression ratio settings based on transmission characteristics and battery life, and thus each group requires a substantially different search.

Art Unit: 2622

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable.

Currently, claims 1 and 15 are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).
